No Election Day for Voters on May 9 Annual School Board Election

Only early voting and absentee options for Jacksonville residents

PULASKI COUNTY, AR – Voters in Jacksonville will head to the polls for the annual school election with one exception – no voting on election day. Since no candidate was certified to run for the Jacksonville North Pulaski School Board and no proposed change in the district’s school tax rate, the School Board submitted a resolution requesting that the election be held by early voting and absentee. There will be no polling locations open on election day.

Arkansas law allows school districts to open no polling locations on election day and instead offer early voting and absentee ballot only if no more than one candidate for a school district position is on the ballot and no change to the local tax rate structure.

“Even though this upcoming annual school election has no slated candidate and no change to the tax mill rate on the ballot, by law the election must occur. I am encouraging all residents in the city of Jacksonville who value voting not to skip this one and go vote,” said County Clerk Terri Hollingsworth.

There are approximately 19,860 eligible registered voters for this election. Jacksonville residents who are unsure if they are qualified to vote can use the Arkansas Secretary of State’s VoterView website to check a sample ballot. The last day for new voters to be qualified to vote in this election was April 9. The last day voters who live outside Pulaski County can transfer their voting address within the Jacksonville city limits and be eligible to vote is May 5.
