

Order of Protection InfoSheet

An Order of Protection is issued by a Circuit Judge and provides victims of domestic violence who are in immediate and present danger of domestic violence protection that can be enforced by law enforcement and the courts.

Orders of Protection are good in any county in and Arkansas and in any state or territory in the United States. An Order of Protection can be sought in the county where the victim resides, the county where the batterer lives or works, or where the incident occurred.

Who can get an Order of Protection?

Spouse or former Spouse of the batterer
Persons who are or have resided together
Persons related by blood
Parent or guardian of a minor
Any adult family or household member on behalf of a minor (including a married minor) or an adjudicated/incompetent person
An employee of a shelter
Persons who are presently, or in the past have been, in a dating relationship

What can the Order of Protection do?

Exclude the batterer from the residence, place of employment, school, church, and child care facilities
Prohibit the batterer from contacting the victim directly or through a third party
Order temporary child custody or visitation of minor children
Order batterer to pay attorney fees
